Q: How do I prevent data loss from unintended deletion of Azure Virtual Machine disk? We are using Azure Virtual Machine disks for storing some sensitive data. Our company's disaster recovery plan includes a test plan in which we will delete a disk on a test VM to see if the other disks can resume and boot. We've gone ahead and deleted the disk, and the disk that is mounted to our test VM is now offline. Since the disk is now down, the two other VMs (production and test) have some issues. We've found that disk recovery is available for disks that are online. I need to recover the disk, but I don't know the best way to do so. Is the only option to perform a recovery on the other VM (production) to get the disk back? Is there another option? A: I'm assuming your production VM has the VHD available. If so, you can recover the data from the VHD. Copy your production VHD to the test VM, then delete the test VM. You'll have a recoverable VHD available to you on the VM which contains the data you need.
